

Workshop Spotlight: We're Pleased to Present...

Mike Eisenbath

Workshop: "Self publishing vs. Traditional: A Balanced Perspective"

New Venue: Kirkwood
Community Center, 111 S. Geyer,
Kirkwood 63122.
Get map and directions.

Date: Saturday, May 2, 2009
Time: 10 AM until noon

SLWG members attend for FREE; $5 fee for non-members
Please register in advance

From the age of 10, MIKE EISENBATH knew he wanted to be a professional writer – specifically, a newspaper sportswriter covering the St. Louis Cardinals major-league baseball team for his hometown St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In 2001, Mike completed his 18th year with the P-D. He twice was voted Missouri Sportswriter of the Year. For several years in the late 1990s, Mike also found time to write The Cardinals Encyclopedia, which was published in 1999 and remains the most comprehensive history written about that storied team.

It was with great sadness that Mike left his beloved Post in 2002. He has been employed by Edward Jones Investments these last seven years, most of those as a financial advisor and now as a supervisor of about 120 advisors.

He has never stopped writing, primarily penning numerous essays with observations of family, faith and life in general. Some of those have found and will continue to find their way to www.eisenbath.com.